Featured speakers are: Dr. Mary Byrne, a PhD education historian from Missouri. She will give a presentation on "How We got to where we are in Education Today – including Common Core."

Pastor Rafael Cruz from Texas, father of Senator Ted Cruz, who is a refugee from Communist Cuba, gives a wonderful talk on "Liberty and What It Really Means."

Ann Schlafly Cory, daughter of our famous founder Phyllis Schlafly, serves as the State President of Missouri Eagle Forum. She will speak on "Passing the Baton – How to Get Youth Involved in Preserving Liberty."

Other Speakers are:

Attorney Brad Dacus, President of the Pacific Justice Institute who will speak on "Defending our Religious Freedoms;"

The Cost? - only $10 donation, an amazing bargain for the opportunity to hear so many great speakers. It does not include lunch. You can bring your own or there will be various options available during the noon break in the courtyard at the church.

To Register – to assure that you have a place, go to Event Brite <http://goo.gl/rqbHY3> or go to www.EagleForumofCalifornia.org.

The Purpose of the Conference? As the flyer insert reads, we are hoping "To equip citizen patriots with the knowledge, tools, and synergy to become the movement that not only defends life and liberty but takes seriously that pursuit of action is key – vital to returning America to her once unparalleled greatness. The conference speakers will direct their message to restoring our Christian foundations - by understanding who we were as opposed to who we have become." Once empowered, it will be the citizen and not the politician who will return us to our moral foundations and cornerstones of virtue, justice, and exceptionalism that once made America the shining city on the hill."

Please Help Spread the Word: Make copies of the enclosed flyer and pass them out to others. This is going to be a great conference that you and your family and friends won't want to miss.

Come Soar with the Eagles!

NEWS IN BRIEF by Orlean Koehle:Battle Against Common Core Assessments Continues

Across the Nation: A recent PBS documentary tells of the great success they are having in New Jersey opting children out of the assessment with young people themselves speaking out against the tests. It shows high schools students who “occupied” their superintendent’s office for three days and are refusing to take the test.

It features New Jersey Eagle Forum State President Carollee Adams, who is leading the battle on the conservative side, and Julia Rubin, the founder of “Save our Schools New Jersey,” fighting on the liberal side. Hand in hand, they are making a difference. As Carollee Adams says, “We are one message with many voices.”

The daughter of Julia Rubin was interviewed, who said that students are supposed to be taking the test for 11 hours and the test questions are very confusing. No one knows what they are really asking for. Experts are saying that there is no data to show that any of this has improved education. According to PBS, 12 states have now dropped out of their assessment tests. [Sorry, California is not one of them. But we are making progress in getting parents to opt their children out of the test. Our problem is we have no accurate media coverage when that happens or to report on how much opposition there is in California.] Go to <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=wEZIMDcBcCk>.

Charter Schools – A Money-Making Scam with No Accountability to Parents?

Many of us for years have been taught that charter schools were a better option to public schools and a true example of school choice. They would allow parents to choose a better, more private school, still paid for with tax paying dollars.

However, according to the national Eagle Forum publication, Education Reporter, March 2015, in many states across the nation, specifically North Carolina, charter schools are becoming just a big money making scam and not really offering better education. They cite the example of businessman Baker Mitchell, who runs four charter schools that mandate that the schools must rent and buy supplies from companies that he owns. “Every year millions of public education dollars flow through Mitchell’s chain of ...nonprofit charter schools to for-profit companies that he owns.” In the past six years, Mitchell’s two companies have taken in almost $20 million in fees and rents. One wonders how many other charter schools are operated in like manner?

In my book Common Core, The Trojan Horse for Education Reform, I tell that Bill Gates and the Pearson Foundation are also buying up public and private schools across the nation, but also in other countries. They too get taxes to pay for the schools from the various governments and run them as businesses, raking in millions of dollars as well.

No Accountability: The biggest problem is where do parents go to complain if they do not like what is going on? With a few exceptions, charter schools no longer come under the control of elected school boards, thus there is no accountability to parents or voters. There is often no way to find out how much money is actually being spent.

Smart Meters Explode in Stockton, CA, April 1

Exploding meters cause fires.

Burnt out meters cause damage to sockets inside homes

What an April Fools’ joke, to wake up to a series of loud explosions that sounded like “car bombs” going off across your neighborhood. But it was no joke, and no car bombs. It was over 1000 smart meters in Stockton, CA exploding because of a power surge in electricity when a dump truck hit a utility pole causing the top power line to fall and hit the lower line. Over 8,000 people were left without any electricity. Some had been so affected that the entire electrical sockets throughout their house were “fried.” https://youtu.be/qb/wDe_8zvY

Co-Pilot of Downed GermanWings Plane - a Jihadist Terrorist?

My husband and I and five of our six children were on vacation recently in Europe flying in a similar Lufthansa plane on the exact same morning, March 24, when the tragic event happened of the German Wings plane that was deliberately crashed into a French mountain at the speed of 430 mph, by the co-pilot Andreas Lubitz, who had locked the pilot out of the cockpit. What if the co-pilot had been assigned to our Lufthansa plane instead? This made me start asking questions and doing research to try to figure out why this really happened.

What person who wanted to commit suicide would want to take out 149 other people with him unless he was doing it for some “greater, [although deranged] jihadist cause for Allah?” Though it has been kept hush-hush by most media, when one delves deeper into the private life of Andreas Lubitz, various German websites begin to pop up - all stating the same thing – Lubitz had converted to the Muslim religion and had jihadist training.

Andreas had several Muslim friends and a Muslim girlfriend. When Lubitz took a 6-month break in his pilot training in 2009, it was not for health reasons, but to receive training to become a jihadist. His flight training was in Bremen, the location of a very radical mosque, which was raided and closed down in December, 2014, because of its encouraging of radical jihadists. Associates say he broke off his relationship with his girlfriend after he pledged to commit jihad for Allah.

COMMON CORE AND ITS GLOBALIST ROOTS

Parents are being told the same over-used mantras by superintendents, school board members, and most classroom teachers to promote acceptance of Common Core – that it was “developed by educators from every state.” That is why it is called a state-standard initiative. Its purpose? – “to improve education and make it more rigorous so children can be better prepared for college and career and compete in the global economy.

Is Common Core just an American idea and construct? Is that really true? If it were, then why is Common Core found in just about every developed nation of the world? It may have a different name, but the structure and goals are all the same.

Where did it really come from? In my book, The Hidden Cs of Common Core, I tell of Robert Muller, former assistant Secretary General for the UN who helped write the World Core Curriculum for UNESCO. Children of every nation are to think of themselves as Citizens of the World and to be prepared to be cogs in the UN global economy, to help usher in a green New World Order.

UNESCO’s World Core Curriculum “Education for All” and UN Agenda 21 both – seek for education to “change people’s values and attitudes, skills and behavior consistent with sustainable development.”

Sustainable Development or sustainability are the key words being taught in every classroom today around the world. Along with them are the Three E’s of Sustainable Development: economy, ecology, and equity. They essentially give more excuses for teaching redistribution of wealth, animals have as much or more rights as humans, loss of property rights and social justice – take from those who have and give to those who have not.

The Higher the Education, the Greater the Threat to Sustainability: UNESCO’s website makes it abundantly clear why we see such a dumbing down of standards through Common Core, the global education plan for the world. Traditional and classical notions of education have no place in the sustainable “green” world order. In a stunning admission in the UN toolkit for global sustainable education, they explain:

Generally, more highly educated people, who have higher incomes, consume more resources than poorly educated people, who tend to have lower incomes. In this case, more education increases the threat to sustainability.

Read that sentence again. Let there be no doubt about the real purpose of Common Core and its deliberate dumbing down of the minds of our nation’s children and for all children across the globe. Poorly educated people are more easily manipulated and duped. However, the children of the elite such as those of Bill Gates get to attend private schools where they are highly educated.

Bill Gates speaking in 2008 at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland.

Gates has been promoting and funding globalist education and “World Citizenship” for many years.

CHILDREN ARE TO BE CITIZENS OF THE WORLD:

What does that mean? According to the globalist organization, Partnership for 21st Century Skills (P21), these are three terms used to describe a “global citizenship” coming from a blog post by Scott Hirschfield, the director of education for U.S. Fund for UNICEF. He also serves on the Strategic Council for P21:

- Self-identification with a world community that shares core values.
- These values are based on the UN Declaration on Human Rights.
- They include concepts such as religious plurality, gender equality, rule of law, sustainable development, and poverty alleviation.

One wonders what “core values global citizens will children be sharing” when they are based on the UN’s Declaration on Human Rights, not the U.S. Bill of Rights; when they are based on “religious plurality,” not a Judeo-Christian foundation or belief in the Bible as the basis for your society. Religious plurality means no religion is any better than anyone else’s. Gender equality means total acceptance of gays and lesbians and same-sex marriage. Acceptance of the rule of law as a global citizen would be, of course, the UN law over any national law, and, of course, sustainable development is acceptance of global warming and all the pseudo-science that is promoted along with sustainable development.

Global, Green Citizens Prepared for a Coming Green Sustainable New World Order:

All citizens of the world, will, of course, be green. One of the key agendas behind Common Core is not openly spoken about. But official UN documents and statements by top world leaders reveal the clandestine plan to transform American children and students around the globe into “global citizens” ready for the coming “green” and “sustainable” new world order. And as we have just read from the quotes on the prior column, to be prepared for that sustainable world, we are not to be well educated – that is a “threat to sustainability.”

All this should give us more ammunition and desire to fight Common Core in every way that we can. Please join with us in this battle. The future of our children and the future of our nation and its liberty are at stake!

ACTION ALERTS:

Please Continue to Fight ESEA or NCLB Reauthorization: The Education Reporter, March 2015, had an excellent article urging us to continue to oppose HR 5, which has the deceptive name of “Student Success Act.” It claims to be able “to reduce the federal footprint, restore local control, and empower parents and education leaders to hold schools accountable.”

But those who have managed to go over its 600 pages with a fine-tooth comb have found that it will do just the opposite of what it claims. HR 5 is “a solidification of federal power over education, an attack on parental rights, and an affront to the independence of private education.”

Religious Private Schools Under Attack: Christel Swasey, one of the Three Moms Against Common Core in Utah, who writes the blog “WhatIsCommonCore.wordpress.com, points out several scary things about HR 5: Page 72-82 contains provisions for private schools mandating that their “services – including materials and equipment – be equitable, secular, neutral, and non-ideological.” It even provides for an “ombudsman,” a sort policeman to monitor and enforce the requirements. How can a religious school be non-ideological – that means teach no religion at all! There are many other equally scary provisions in HR5. Obviously, those who are supporting the bill, either have not read it or are deceived.

NO Reauthorization: Eagle Forum urges you to join with other national groups in asking for your Congressmen to vote No on HR 5 and the Senate version of the same bill. The ESEA (Elementary Secondary Education Act), named No Child Left Behind (NCLB) when George W. Bush reauthorized it, has been reauthorized by every president since LBJ, who began it. Back then ESEA had only 30 pages. It has gotten bigger and bigger and usurped more federal control over education each time it has happened. We don’t need it – let it just sunset, fade off and die as should every bad, scary bill that Congress imposes on state and local school districts – such as Common Core.

Fight SB 128 - Physician Assisted Suicide Bill in California: Please call your state legislators and let them know how strongly you oppose this bill. It has already passed the health committee and is on its way to other committees. If this bill should pass, some disabled people are fearful that insurance companies will push assisted suicide for those whose care is expensive.

"I've been given a terminal diagnosis at least four times," said Laurie Hoirup, 59, who uses a wheelchair. "Had I opted for this I would not be alive today."
